JPMorgan Chase Launches Code for Good Challenges in the US

Technology students in college have the opportunity to use their skills to help charities

New York, February 6, 2013 - JPMorgan Chase (NYSE: JPM) announced today the launch of the Code for Good Challenges in the United States. Building off a successful launch in the United Kingdom, the Code for Good Challenges will bring together college students studying technology to develop solutions to challenges faced by nonprofits during an intense two-day event.

"We're excited for the Code for Good Challenge kickoff in the U.S", said Guy Chiarello, JPMorgan Chase's Chief Information Officer. "The program offers a unique opportunity for participants to use their skills to benefit nonprofits, while also demonstrating their technology abilities to a leading global organization. It's a win for all involved."

The series of U.S.-based events will kickoff off in New York, Delaware and Ohio, and will continue in other JPMorgan Chase locations throughout 2013. Dates of the first U.S. events:

- New York, NY: February 23 - February 24
- Newark, DE: March 1 - March 2
- Columbus, OH: March 2 - March 3

Participants at each event will be placed into teams and tasked with working together to creatively solve a challenge faced by a local nonprofit organization. JPMorgan Chase technologists will also be involved, advising participants throughout the course of the event. A panel of judges will determine the winning team, which will be announced at the culmination of the 2-day event.

College students majoring in a technology-related field at universities in the Northeast, Mid-Atlantic or Midwest who would like the opportunity to put their coding skills to use for a good cause, should apply by visiting <http://techcareers.jpmorganchase.com/opportunities/> and selecting the event in their region (New York - Northeast/ Delaware - Mid-Atlantic/Ohio - Midwest).

The deadline to apply for the New York event is February 10 and the deadline for the Newark and Columbus events is February 18.
